Clean Comedy · Professional Experience · Real Laughs

ABOUT

Hal Wilson is a clean comedian whose smart, relatable style connects with audiences of all ages. Based in Statesboro, GA, he is an award-winning professor, veteran coach, and father of three who draws comedy from parenting, sports culture, academia, growing older, and everyday chaos. A North Carolina native and former walk-on basketball player at UNC Wilmington, Hal knows a thing or two about long odds and stubborn optimism. Warm, professional, and genuinely funny, he performs "no cringe" material for comedy clubs, corporate events, churches, fundraisers, and private events throughout the Southeast and beyond.

WHAT THE ROOM IS SAYING

"We had the absolute pleasure of hosting Hal Wilson for a stand-up comedy show at our retirement community, and it was truly a highlight for all of us. Hal's engaging presence immediately put everyone at ease, and his humor was spot-on from start to finish. We appreciated the variety of topics, as there was something for everyone. Hal had the entire room laughing along and left us all wanting more by the end of the show. Thank you for bringing so much joy and laughter to our community. We look forward to welcoming you back again the next time you're in town!"

Hayley Wingard · Director, Community Programs & Events · Well-Spring Community

"Good, clean comedy! Thank goodness that type of comedy is making a return in a big way and Hal Wilson is a perfect example of a comedian who shares life experiences, of which we can all relate, in a clean, family-style way. He's quick-witted, intellectually funny and self-deprecating in a very funny way. If you haven't heard him yet, make a point to take the time to listen...you'll be glad that you did!"
